Von Rosalind Laker : Brilliance (Severn House Large Print) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Brilliance (Severn House Large Print):

An enjoyable read Von kashew I bought this book based on my reading of many of Rosalind Laker's earlier books. As with many other of her works, she picks a topic (in this case magic lantern shows and the subsequent early development of films) and ties in a love story. In the end, you learn something while being entertained. As usual, the love story is filled with drama - attraction, betrayal, insecurity and fulfillment. For those who enjoy Victoria Holt's works, Rosalind Laker is a good choice. The story was an easy and quick read, but was not among my absolute favorites of hers. I preferred The Venetian Mask and Circle of Pearls. Still, her stories are great for taking along in the train and plane, or curling up on the couch when it rains.

KurzbeschreibungA captivating romance - Paris, 1894. - Lisette Decourt flees her home and attaches herself to travelling lanternist Daniel Shaw. Lisette is irresistibly attracted to the magnetic Englishman, and although Fate separates them, she cannot forget him. In a moment of impulse that she will never regret, Lisette Decourt flees her home and family on the eve of marriage to a man who has betrayed her. She attaches herself to a travelling 'lanternist', Daniel Shaw, whose 'Magic Lantern' show is a phenomenally popular precursor of silent movies. Lisette is fascinated by Daniel's art and - though adamant that she will never fall in love again - is irresistibly attracted to the magnetic Englishman. Though Fate intervenes to separate them, Lisette cannot forget Daniel. She builds a new life for herself as an independent, self-sufficient career woman, yet she remains fascinated by the vibrant new film-making industry whose French proponents are the famous Lumiere Brothers. When a chance encounter reunites Lisette with Daniel, by now a successful film-maker himself, he realizes that she has the magic, elusive quality that will make her a star.
