Zeck Von Ein Kunde Wolfe finally confronts Arnold Zeck, the supervillain who's been dogging him for several books. In addition to Archie and Wolfe taking on their nemesis, this book contains two of the most significant moments in the Corpus: the strafing of the plant rooms, and Lily Rowan's brief encounter with "Pete." Highly recommended. 2 von 2 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. A must read!! Von Ein Kunde This is one of my favorite Nero Wolfe/Archie Goodwin mysteries. My only comment is to read Fer-de-Lance, The Silent Speaker and some other Nero Wolfe mysteries before delving into this novel. You will enjoy it more! 0 von 2 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Wolfe at Reichenbach Falls Von Ein Kunde The climax of the Zeck trilogy, I found this unlikely and unconvincing. It's purely an adventure, with a weak mystery sub-plot. Not to be compared with the best Wolfes.

Kurzbeschreibung Aging millionairess Mrs. Rackham asks Nero Wolfe to find out where her penniless husband has suddenly been obtaining mysteriously large sums of money, a request that leads to murder and to threats against the master detective himself. From Library Journal Nero Wolfe is sleuthing as usual in these three mysteries. In The Best Families deals with Mrs. Rackham, an aging millionaire who approaches Wolfe to investigate why her young and penniless husband suddenly and mysteriously has large sums of money. Wolfe's inquiry leads him to a confrontation with Arnold Zeck; later a letter bomb causes Wolfe to resign from detective work and go into hiding, leaving his assistant, Archie Goodwin, to solve the case. Has Wolfe's career ended in humiliation? Only time will tell. Michael Pritchard's clear and strong reading helps support the tale. Rachel Bruner, a wealthy society widow, turns to Wolfe in The Doorbell Rang. She writes him a check for $100,000 and asks him to stop the FBI from spying on her and her family. She will pay more if he is successful. He takes the case, and soon Wolfe and Archie are confronting FBI agents, murder, and threats as they search for answers. Champagne for One challenges Wolfe's knowledge of gourmet food and of sleuthing. Did society girl Faith Usher commit suicide via cyanide in her champagne, or was she murdered? Archie was there, and he suspects foul play. Saul Rubinek provides pleasant readings of both stories and helps keep the atmosphere charged. Although abridged, The Doorbell Rang/Champagne for One provides more entertainment than In the Best Families and is recommended. A Denise A. Garofalo, Mid-Hudson Lib.
