years ago, evil Konstantine Varinski, a Cossack, made a pact with the devil. He and all his descendants would have the power to turn into predators (wolves, tigers etc.), be impossible to kill except by another of their kind, live long and healthy lives and have only sons. In exchange their souls would be the devil's. To seal the pact, Konstantine killed his mother to get the family's icon depicting four images of the Madonna. When he gave it to the devil, Satan split it into four parts and hurled those to different parts of the earth. The pact can only be broken if all the parts are united again. 30 years ago, a descendant of the Varinskis, also named Konstantine, broke with tradition when he fell in love and married a gypsy girl. They had to leave their home and change their family name to Wilder because both families were against the union and hunted them. They had three sons and a daughter in their new home, the USA. But the Varinskis and the curse have caught up with them and now it is up to Konstantine's sons to break the curse by finding their loves who will then find one part of the icon. If they don't succeed, the pact will stand and their souls are the devil's. Into the flame is the 4th and final book in the series. Firebird Wilder fell in love with Douglas Black, a policeman, a few years ago and got pregnant. But Doug was always secretive and when she finds out that he can change into a cougar she is convinced that he is a Varinski who only seduced her to get to the Wilders. So she left secretly, had her son without ever telling Douglas about him and has lived with her parents since then. But there's a lot more to Douglas than she knows and in order to find the last icon and win the battle against the Varinskis and the devil himself, Firebird and Doug will have to overcome their problems. Their mutual attraction is strong, but there have been too many secrets and lies for them to easily trust each other... This book is a paranormal romance. The romance part is great with likeable and strong characters, as well as some really steamy scenes. The paranormal plot is also fun and includes lots of action. I enjoyed the book and would say it's (along with Into the Shadow) one of the best of a good series. It's also the ending of the series and answers some questions that were left open in the other books. In my opinion, it was a very good and satisfying conclusion. The complete series is: Scent of darkness, Touch of darkness, Into the shadow and Into the flame.
