former boyfriend. she even is not feeling guilty about her cheated husband, who while she is cheating watches the kids. after been turned down the wife decides, that she is glad she has not gone the whole way and that she married the right man. She does not tell him what she has done. in the end , which is not written good, she meets her former boyfriend in london and again invites him to her room to have sex with him, but he turns her down again. this end does not make sense to the wifes realisation, that she is happy with her husband.
